The right of disposal includes:

- The right to withdraw cash. The account signatory must have their own bank card linked to the account(s) that they are authorised to operate.
- Right to charge account(s) for individual payment orders.
- Right of access to the account(s).
- The account signatory/signatories is/are authorised to operate my account(s) using their own access to the online bank, mobile banking app and similar online payment services. The account signatory must use their own BankID.

This includes:

- The limit for the right of disposal follows the amount limit set at any given time for the account signatory in the online bank, mobile banking app, etc.
- The account signatory will be able to enter into a direct debit agreement on behalf of the account holder.

More detailed conditions for the right of disposal:

Part B of the account agreement applies to the right of disposal, General terms and conditions for deposits and payment services.

Otherwise, the following applies:

- The account signatory may not give others the right to operate the account(s) (pass on the right to operate the account(s)).
- The account signatory cannot enter into an eFaktura (einvoice) agreement on behalf of the account holder.
- A guardian cannot register a third person as an account signatory. The authorisation must either be signed by the person who has a guardian, or a confirmation from the County Governor must be submitted, stating that the specified person can be registered as an account signatory.
- The account signatory does/do not have the right to terminate the account.
- There is no amount limit for the right of disposal.
- The account signatory will be able to use services provided by other payment service providers if such services can be linked to the account.
- The account holder will be liable for overdrafts resulting from the account signatory use of the account(s).
- The right of disposal applies until it is revoked. Such revocation must be reported to the bank, normally in writing. The bank is not responsible for dispositions made by the account signatory until the bank becomes aware of the revocation.
- Upon the death of the account holder, the right of disposal ceases. The bank is not responsible for dispositions made by the account signatory until the Bbnk is made aware of the death of the account holder.

- In the event of the account holder's bankruptcy, the right of disposal ceases.

According to the provisions of the Norwegian Personal Data Act, this form must be returned by post to DNB Bank ASA, P.O. Box 1600 Sentrum, 0021 Oslo.
